Checking out some sites in Montana

One of the ski lifts at Big Sky

By BARBARA BARBIERI

Because of all of the excitement of North Dakota being my 50th state to visit the fact that I also was re-visiting Montana got lost in the shuffle of my telling about my most recent Land Cruise bus trip.

Highlights of the Montana visit were: the scenic drive along the Gallatin River, checking out the ski resort of Big Sky and a boat ride on the Missouri River through what is called the Gates of the Mountain.

Our bus was able to stop for us to explore getting up close to the boulder-filled Gallatin River as the water gushed over the rocks and rafts made their way down stream. Everywhere I looked was a scene I wanted to paint. As we did this exploring we were very near to Yellowstone Park.

But then it was off to the Big Sky Town Center which is the area that was championed by the famous TV newscaster Chet Huntley and where during the winter months the avid skiers can gather after skiing activities. We enjoyed visiting the small shops and had our noon box lunches.

And then it was time for us to enjoy the "summer" ski experience as we enjoyed rides up the ski lift at Big Sky. I rode up the Everett lift that was at 8,800 feet while others went even higher. The ground below, which would be covered in snow during the winter, was mostly dirt and rocks. But looking up the views were spectacular and the ride fun.

'Gates of the Mountains' at Missouri River

We stayed two nights in the town of Bozeman as staying at the ski resort itself was a bit out of our price range.

Our boat ride on the Missouri River through the 5 3/4 miles of Gates of the Mountain cliffs, so called by Meriweather Lewis as he passed through there in July of 1805, was breathtaking. The limestone cliffs are punctured with hundreds of small holes, caves and natural bridges. This allows for ample nesting sites for all types of birds, including an eagle that soared over our heads. We also were able to view Pictographs carved into the cliffs.

So, if you are ever in Montana I'd recommend you check out those sites.
