An adventure at a New Hampshire ski site

By BARBARA BARBIERI

This summer has been one of travel, in addition to my recent bus trip to North Dakota and Montana, I also have been out east to New Hampshire.

This visit came about as youngest grandson Brent Barbieri, who lives and works in the Boston area, decided that he and his bride-to-be Ashley Haigh would marry at the top of a ski slope at Waterville Valley in New Hampshire. So after a quick repack of my suitcase from the bus trip west I headed with daughter Cindi east to Logan Airport in Boston. (The nearest airport to the venue.)

Getting through airports is far easier these days as my family orders a wheelchair for me and they get to follow along. (And yes, I can walk, but not fast or for long distances since my pelvic fracture during the COVID months.)

However getting out of Boston on a Friday afternoon, with the main exiting tunnel closed for repairs, was a real challenge for daughter Cindi, our rented car and the GPS direction giver. But before nightfall we found the delightful little community of Waterville Valley and other family members.

Our stay was at the Golden Eagle Lodge which was within walking distance to the Town Square and it's small quaint shops and eating establishments. It also offered bike rentals for path exploring and boat rentals for use on the Corcoran Pond. The pond also had a beach area for those who just wished to relax.

But our mission was to spend time with family and get Brent and Ashley married at the top of the Waterville Valley Ski area. This required a trip up the 8-seater ski lift by all guests. (It was the same type of lift I had experienced at Montana's Big Sky, which I found fun but which put some of the guests into panic mode.) The reward at the top of the mountain was a breathtaking view and a meaningful ceremony conducted by the groom's uncle

(The popular winter ski resort has now become a popular summer marriage venue with 17 booked for this season.) The reception required a ride back down on the lift to where skiers or wedding guests could relax and enjoy a delicious dinner in the ski lodge.

The area was the perfect site for a lovely wedding as well as a place to catch up with family and to meet and greet my newest family members including; little great granddaughter - two month old Evelyn Grace, courtesy of her parents (granddaughter Ashley and Dustin McKnight).

So if you ever find yourself in New Hampshire we would like to recommend you find your way to Waterville Valley for a wonderful adventure.
