By HOLLY GASKILL

Work on Bridge 85, located on Hoosier Highway over Rock Creek, will begin Oct. 6.

Subsequently, a portion of Hoosier Highway just north of County Road 500S will be closed until mid-November. County Engineer Nate Rumschlag told the commissioners Monday that the contractors for the bridge rehabilitation, Pioneer Associates, contacted last week and moved up the project from the spring. This, however, may cause issues for some farming and school bus routes.

"It's 30 days, right when I know they're not going to like it very much," Rumschlag said. "So it's unfortunate, but it fits in their schedule to try to knock it out by the end of the year."

The road is expected to re-open by Nov. 14.

Also during the meeting, the commissioners approved an updated five-year ADA Transition Plan, which outlines projects to increase (Continued on Page 2)

Woman pleads not guilty to domestic battery

By SYDNEY KENT

A woman accused of severely abusing a family member under her care pled not guilty to the charges in the Wells Circuit Court earlier this week.

Natasha L. Stanton, 42, Bluffton, was charged with domestic battery by means of a deadly weapon, a Level 5 felony, two counts of domestic battery resulting in moderate bodily injury, a Level 6 felony, and confinement and strangulation, both Level 6 felonies.

According to a probable cause affidavit, the victim reported the abuse from a neighbor's phone when Stanton allegedly strangled her and wouldn't allow her to call a family member for help.

The victim detailed a significant history of ongoing abuse. The situation reportedly escalated approximately six weeks prior when Stanton's boyfriend moved into the residence. Stanton also reportedly controlled all of the victim's finances and government assistance.

Child care has lost thousands in funding

Families and providers scramble to cope after the loss of some government funding

By LEAH WILLINGHAM Associated Press

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP) – Kaitlyn Adkins is studying law to help families in her community impacted by the opioid epidemic at the heart of West Virginia coal country.

But to do that, she needs someone to help look after her three toddlers. The first-generation college graduate said she wouldn't be able to finish law school without access to reliable daycare.

Providers say millions of children and their families are now at risk of losing that vital service. After two years of receiving federal subsidies, 220,000 child care programs across the country were cut off from funding Saturday. The largest investment in child care in U.S. history, the monthly payments ranged from hundreds to tens of thousands of dollars, and stabilized the industry during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"It feels like they're just setting everyone up for failure," Adkins said, dropping her 2-year-old and 1-yearold twins at daycare on a recent morning before an hour-and-a-half drive to class.

For years, providers have been raising alarm about an unsustainable business model that burdens families with high costs and leaves centers with razor-thin profit margins — issues (Continued on Page 2)

Council on Aging hosts vaccine clinic

By HOLLY GASKILL

A free vaccine clinic will be available at the 4-H fairgrounds on Oct. 12.

The clinic, hosted by the Wells County Council on Aging, will be available to everyone over the age of 18, regardless of residency or healthcare coverage. Available vaccines will include the flu, singles, and pneumonia. The clinic will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Susie Ehlerding, assistant director of the Council on Aging, said the group received a grant that made the opportunity possible. Ehlerding stated the event is largely aimed to fill gaps from the Wells County Health Department's fair, which has not been hosted since COVID-19.

Because of the grant funding, the clinic will also offer a free boxed lunch from the Grand Sweet Shop for participants.

Those planning to attend are encouraged to pre-register by calling Ehlerding, 260-824-1070, but pre-registration is not required. Participants are also asked to bring their insurance card, if applicable.

The U.S. has new round of federal student loan forgiveness

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Joe Biden outlined a new round of federal student loan forgiveness on Wednesday to address the "unsustainable debt" that borrowers accumulate to complete their college education.

The announcement comes as borrowers brace for payments to restart after a three-year pause that began during the COVID-19 pandemic and Biden tries to fulfill his campaign promises on debt relief as he runs for reelection.

The Democratic president's latest step will help 125,000 borrowers by erasing $9 billion in debt through existing programs. In total, 3.6 million borrowers will have had $127 billion in debt wiped out since Biden took office.

"We're not done yet," Biden said in the Roosevelt Room at the White House. He pledged to help alleviate the burden of student debt while running for president, and he's been under pressure to follow through even though his original plan was overturned by the conservative majority on the Supreme Court. Biden said the decision was responsible for "snatching from the hands of millions of Americans thousands of dollars of student debt relief that was about to change their lives."

only exacerbated by inflation and a significant workforce shortage.

Now, providers say that without additional investment, they face the possibility of shutdown. The Century Foundation, a progressive think tank in Washington, D.C., analyzed a provider survey and government data, and concluded that in five states - Arkansas, Montana, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia — as well as Washington, D.C., up to half of all providers may be forced to close.

Many families and providers are calling on Congress to create a permanent funding solution to the crisis. warning of the ripple effects on the nation's economy. A Democratic proposal failed last month without any Republican support. It would have continued the grants for five years with $16 billion allocated annually.

The most at-risk providers are those in rural communities that predominately serve low-income families. In West Virginia, where a quarter of all children live in poverty, the situation is especially dire.

Adkins brings her children to a center affiliated with a church in Williamson, West Virginia, where nearly 90 percent of families qualify for federal aid to help cover child care costs. For a family of four, that means making less than $45,000 a year. Williamson is the seat of Mingo County, where one in three residents live below the poverty line, and more than 75 percent of children in the county school system are being raised by someone other than their parents, often grandparents.

Most mornings, Adkins wakes up at 5:30 a.m. to shuttle her kids to Living Water Child Care Center. She typically gets home late, and plays with and bathes her children before studying until early morning.

The proud daughter of a former coal miner, Adkins said she's witnessed the loss of coal jobs and the influx of opioids in the state with the highest rate of up paying more in the long run to welfare programs if the government doesn't make investments now in child care.

"We're seeing our kids really suffer - and that's a big problem," said Adkins, who wants to practice law focused on child abuse and neglect. "If they have no structure and no guidance, we're going to keep repeating cycles."

Starting in October 2021, Democrats' American Rescue Plan Act disbursed $24 billion in payments to providers across the country, with varied funding based on program size and quality rating. In West Virginia, centers received an average $5,000 to $27,000 a month and family providers got between $750 to $3,200. The legislation also included $15 billion to expand the block grant program that subsidizes the cost of child care for low-income families, though it is set to expire in September 2024.

At Living Water, a $7,000 monthly subsidy went to purchasing new curriculum and advancing employee certifications, according to Director Jackie Branch. The investment paid off: In April, the center moved up a tier in its state quality rating, increasing its monthly stabilization funding to $11,000.

When staffers realized many children didn't get outside playtime at home, they installed a rubber playground and colorful sunshades

School-aged kids can finally work on homework assignments in the afterschool program thanks to recently purchased computers.

Like most providers in the state, Living Water was also able to offer staff bonuses.

As of May 2022, the median pay for a child care worker in the U.S. was $13.71, compared with $10.47 in West Virginia, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor. Wage growth in the industry has fallen behind other low-wage professions.

Over the years, Goldie Huff, a waitress at a steakhouse in Williamson, has overdoses. She said taxpayers will end cared for more than two dozen foster care children. There are just two child care centers in the entire county, and the community can't afford to lose either one, she said.

"It would be horrible," she said, if Living Waters closed. All of her foster children have attended Living Water, along with kids, grandchildren and other family members. The state has the highest number of youth in foster care in the country.

She said a lot of the kids she cares for are recovering from traumatic childhood experiences and need structure. "How many kids do you know that don't wake up to breakfast? They don't know where the meals are coming from. They've not had baths. They've never had nice clothes."

The center serves three meals a day, plus snacks. They also distribute donations such as clothes and school supplies.

Branch said it will be an uphill battle to find other grants to make up for lost funds.

Policymakers should not only be worried about shuttering centers, but also about the quality of care and education available with such limited resources, said Melissa Colagrosso, CEO of A Place To Grow Children's Center, in Fayetteville, West Virginia. Since they opened 28 years ago, the number of accredited centers in the state has been halved.

"Right in the beginning, that's our opportunity to really change the brain and change a child's future," she said. "You invest in early childhood, then you invest less in prisons."

West Virginia's Department of Health and Human Resources announced last week it was sending providers a final bonus payment as September drew to a close, but that funds were tapped. The agency also allocated $24 million in TANF funds to reimburse providers for children whose costs are subsidized based on enrollment rather than attendance for another year.

Biden administration waives 26 federal laws to allow border wall construction in South Texas

By VALERIE GONZALEZ Associated Press

McALLEN, Texas (AP) - The Biden administration announced they waived 26 federal laws in South Texas to allow border wall construction on Wednesday, marking the administration's first use of a sweeping executive power employed often during the Trump presidency.

The Department of Homeland Security posted the announcement on the U.S. Federal Registry with few details outlining the construction in Starr County, Texas, which is part of a busy Border Patrol sector seeing "high illegal entry." According to government data, about 245,000 illegal entries have been recorded in this region during the current fiscal year.

"There is presently an acute and immediate need to construct physical barriers and roads in the vicinity of the border of the United States in order to prevent unlawful entries into the United States in the project areas," Alejandro Mayorkas, the DHS secretary, stated in the notice.

The Clean Air Act, Safe Drinking Water Act and Endangered Species Act were some of the federal laws waived by DHS to make way for construction that will use funds from a congressional appropriation in 2019 for border wall construction. The waivers avoid time-consuming reviews and lawsuits challenging violation of environmental laws.

Starr County's hilly ranchlands, sitting between Zapata and McAllen, Texas, is home to about 65,000 residents sparsely populating about 1,200 square miles (3,108 square kilometers) that form part of the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge.

Although no maps were provided in the announcement, a previous map shared during the gathering of public comments shows the piecemeal construction will add up to an additional 20 miles to the existing border barrier system in the area. Starr County Judge Eloy Vera said it will start south of the Falcon Dam and go past Salineño, Texas.

"The other concern that we have is that area is highly erosive. There's a lot of arroyos," Eloy Vera, the county judge said, pointing out the creeks cutting through the ranchland and leading into the river.

Concern is shared with environmental advocates who say structures will run through public lands, habitats of endangered plants and species like the Ocelot, a spotted wild cat.

"A plan to build a wall through will bulldoze an impermeable barrier straight through the heart of that habitat. It will stop wildlife migrations dead in their tracks. It will destroy a huge amount of wildlife refuge land. And it's a horrific step backwards for the borderlands," Laiken Jordahl, a southwest conservation advocate for the Center for Biological Diversity, said Wednesday afternoon.

During the Trump administration, about 450 miles of barriers were built along the southwest border between 2017 and January 2021. Texas Governor Greg Abbott renewed those efforts after the Biden administration halted them at the start of his presidency.

The DHS decision on Wednesday contrasts the Biden administration's posturing when a proclamation to end the construction on Jan. 20, 2021 stated, "building a massive wall that spans the entire southern border is not a serious policy solution."

U.S. Customs and Border Protection had no immediate comment.

The announcement prompted political debate by the Democratic administration facing an increase of migrants entering through the southern border in recent months, including thousands who entered the U.S. through Eagle Pass at the end of September.

"A border wall is a 14th century solution to a 21st century problem. It will not bolster border security in Starr County," U.S. Representative Henry Cuellar said in a statement. "I continue to stand against the wasteful spending of taxpayer dollars on an ineffective border wall."

Political proponents of the border wall said the waivers should be used as a launching pad for a shift in policy.

"After years of denying that a border wall and other physical barriers are effective, the DHS announcement represents a sea change in the administration's thinking: A secure wall is an effective tool for maintaining control of our borders," Dan Stein, president of the Federation for American Immigration Reform, said in a statement. "Having made that concession, the administration needs to immediately begin construction of wall across the border to prevent the illegal traffic from simply moving to other areas of the border.'

Damien L. SR Jackson, 46, Fort Wayne, domestic battery, a Class A misdemeanor. Bond set at $25,000.

Skylark Nathaniel Brock Gearlds, 33, Bluffton, contempt of court. Bond set at $500.

The Wells County Chamber of Commerce staff and ambassadors gathered for a ribbon-cutting ceremony to welcome the newest member of the business community, Bethanie Burns, owner of Beauty from Ashes Studio. The event celebrated the opening of the studio, which is conveniently located at 122 North Johnson St. in Bluff-

Bethanie Burns brings 25 years of experience in the hair industry, and her journey to opening Beauty from Ashes Studio is nothing short of inspiring. Having started her career from her own home, Bethanie believed that chapter had come to a close. However, her passion for helping others led her to work on the Grace & Mercy Transitional Housing program, where she discovered an opportunity to support women in need.

"One of the things I saw as a need for women in the program at Grace & Mercy is to safely get them back to work in the community," Bethanie explained. "Some women had a career in cosmetology, but their past charges prevented them from working in the industry. I have a beauty instructor license and can provide training and education. I am now able to help these ladies get their licenses back, even if they have a felony charge or are on probation."

With unwavering faith and determination, Bethanie and her husband embarked on a journey that led them to open Beauty from Ashes Studio. Karley Vaughn, one of their stylists, successfully graduated from the Grace & Mercy program and now manages the studio. Karley shares Bethanie's passion for making a positive impact in the community and helping women who have faced similar challenges.

The studio has become a safe haven, offering a chance for women to rebuild their lives and careers. Deanna Speidel, another stylist on the team, shares the same dedication to empowering others and making them feel beautiful. Courtney Lesh, stylist, with her passion for recovery, offers a range of services including massages, pedicures, and manicures.

Bethanie emphasized the importance of creating a safe space for their clients, saying, "We pour our passion and dedication into our work, and we've been truly blessed by the journey. We created the space, and it's as if it was destined for these remarkable women who have now joined us. the ribbon is Bethanie Burns surrounded by family, friends, and Chamber of Commerce

Deanna is also part of our team, and her unwavering commitment to uplifting others and enhancing their beauty is truly inspiring.'

The name Beauty from Ashes reflects the studio's deep-rooted belief that transformation is possible for everyone. "There's no life that can't be transformed, and God can make something beautiful out of it," Bethanie shared. "That is simply the heart of our place here, to bring something beautiful to the community."

The studio underwent cosmetic renovations, including painting and workstation upgrades, to create a welcoming and attractive space for customers. Beauty from Ashes Studio offers a wide range of services, including haircuts, color, hair extensions, massages, waxing, facials, pedicures, men's haircuts, and beard grooming. They exclusively use Milkshake products, an Italian haircare line known for its natural ingredients and hair-friendly formulas.

Beauty from Ashes Studio is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Appointments with their talented stylists can be booked through their Facebook page.

Judge orders Indiana school shooter's release into custody of parents

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) - A judge Wednesday approved the release of a teenager who opened fire at a central Indiana middle school in 2018, wounding another student and a teacher, a prosecutor said.

The judge approved the 18-year-old's release from juvenile detention into the custody of his parents because he is now an adult and could no longer be legally held for crimes he committed while a minor, Hamilton County Chief Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Joshua Kocher told The Indianapolis Star.

The teenager will be on home detention with a GPS monitor and bound by restrictions including no guns or drugs, no computers unless monitored by probation officials, limited time on electronic devices, and no visits to schools or college campuses without

25K UAW members striking against Detroit Three automakers; Holcomb comments

By NIKI KELLY and ANNA LIZ NICHOLS

Indiana Capital Chronicle Two more plants, employing 7,000 workers, joined the United Auto Workers strike at noon Friday but Hoosier workers avoided joining the picket line.

UAW President Shawn Fain announced the new additions Friday morning on Facebook Live. This brings the total number of workers who will have walked off the job to 25,000. Fain called on Ford's Chicago Assembly Plant, as well as GM's Lansing Delta Township facility to stand up and go out on strike at noon Friday. Fain offered those who have already been called to strike a message of encouragement. "Keep showing the company's that you're ready to stand up when you're called. When we win this fight, when we right the wrongs of the past 15 years and longer. And when we set a new course for future generations, it won't be because of any president, not the UAW president, not the president of the United States. It will be because ordinary people did extraordinary things," Fain said.

The strike against Detroit Three auto manufacturers Ford, General Motors and Stellantis started two weeks ago after contract negotia-

President Donald Trump's Wednesday speech at a non-union Macomb County plant. The union president declined to meet with Trump, saying he was part of the problem of the "billionaire class.'

prior approval.

Those limits are in place "to ensure the safety of the community," Kocher said.

Kocher didn't say when the teenager would be released from detention.

Hamilton Superior Court Judge Michael A. Casati on Aug. 14 ordered the teenager to be held in the Hamilton County Juvenile Service Center while probation officials found a suitable secure residential facility for him to ease the teenager's return to society. However, Hamilton County authorities could not find such a facility.

The teenager, who was 13 at the time of the shooting, had been detained since shortly after he opened fire at Noblesville West Middle School in May 2018. He shot a seventh-grade science teacher and another 13-year-old student. The teacher, Jason Seaman, tackled and pinned him to the ground.

Seaman was shot three times, and the student, Ella Whistler, was shot seven times. No one was killed.

The teen was preparing to be released to his family when on March 20, prosecutors say, he assaulted a female counselor at the Pendleton Juvenile Correctional Facility by "fist-bumping" her breast, then joking about it with other juveniles. He was 17 at the time and was charged as a juvenile with battery.

Indiana: no universal licensing for now

By NIKI KELLY

The Interim Study Committee on Employment and Labor finalized a final report Monday that recommended against interstate mobility of occupational licensing.

Sen. Linda Rogers, R-Granger, said those who did testify on the topic did not want to be included if the state moved forward with universal licensing recognition. She said they have successful compacts or procedures in place for their industries.

The analysis was meant to shore up worker shortages in key occupational areas, including health care.

The committee drafted a bill requiring the Indiana Professional Licensing Agency to study what other states are doing in terms of universal licensing. The agency also must contact the 40 different occupations and professions they license to get feedback and prepare a report for the General Assembly by the end of October 2024.

Indiana uses interstate compacts to allow licensed professionals more mobility – each customized to a specific profession and applicable to particular states.

There are four active agreements for doctors, nurses, physical therapists and psychologists, according to data compiled by the Indiana Professional Licensing Agency. Implementation of another three agreements, authorized in 2022 and 2023, is pending.

Universal licensing proponents say it makes it easier for licensed professionals to work elsewhere, without having to re-do strict requirements for a different state's license, and without having to navigate a web of reciprocity options.

Meanwhile, Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb weighed in without taking sides on the dispute.

They know that I want to be a partner to them both and so I'm not gonna be the guy that from the cheap seats, hurls accusations or insults or throws an explosive phrase into that environment," he said. "It's already highly charged and they've got serious work to do. I hope they can make progress. And they should know that we're ready to go just as soon as they are. We've got a lot of plans waiting to become reality."

He said it was bittersweet that Indiana wasn't added to the growing list of striking plants.

"I'm very grateful. It sounds selfish, that it hasn't hit our shore yet. But that doesn't mean it hasn't affected global markets that have an impact on Indiana's prospects," Holcomb said. "We have a lot in our pipeline, a lot of momentum in this sector, and we want to continue to be good parttions failed.

Fain said as he was gearing up for the planned livestream, Stellantis showed progress in negotiating with the union for a better contract, so the union did not target additional plants at the company.

At Fain's invitation, President Joe Biden on Tuesday visited a UAW picket line in Belleville, Mich., telling workers, "Wall Street didn't build the country; the middle class built the country. ... And unions built the middle class."

Although Biden said he marched in UAW picket lines when he was a U.S. senator, he's taking pride in doing it as president. It is believed that this is the first time in modern history that a sitting president has visited an active strike site.

Fain did not note former

Obstacles

Even with Biden's support for the striking workers, Fain noted UAW members are still facing obstacles, noting a hit-and-run incident Tuesday afternoon on the picket line at General Motors' Flint Processing Center. The incident, where it's reported a driver leaving the facility hit five members of the picket line, wasn't the only violence Fain said has occurred.

"We've had guns pulled on us. Trucks and cars ran through us and violent threats hurled at us. And I want to be absolutely clear. We will not be intimidated

How Indiana handles early legislative departures

In recent months we have seen a spate of state lawmakers retiring early and party insiders choosing their successors instead of the full electorate.

This is how Indiana law works, and both Republicans and Democrats have done it regularly. But is it the right state policy?

One in five of Indiana's current representatives and senators were first appointed via a political caucus instead of by the voters.

That means the lawmakers get the advantages of incumbency – name recognition, statepaid mailers and more without having to win an election. The numbers also bear out that once you are in office it is very rare that incumbents are defeated.

Since the legislative session ended, three lawmakers have resigned.

• Randy Frye left the Indiana House in July, citing health issues and the desire to spend more time with family. North Vernon attorney J. Alex Zimmerman was selected to finish Frye's two-year term ending in November 2024.

• Chip Perfect resigned from his seat in the Indiana Senate for personal reasons. It came not even a year after he was re-elected to a four-year term. His replacement, Randy Maxwell of Guilford, was sworn in Thursday.

• Jon Ford departed the Senate "to pursue new professional endeavors" effective Oct. 16. He also has more than three years left on his term, and his successor will be chosen in a caucus.

And while this piece is about legislative resignations, just yesterday Indiana's Auditor Tera Klutz announced she is leaving with more than three years left in her term for a private sector opportunity. She is the fourth auditor in a row to resign early.

The history

Indiana's original Constitution gave the governor the ability to call for a special election to fill state legislative vacancies. Then in 1972, Hoosier voters approved a constitutional amendment that allowed the General Assembly to set the method for filling vacancies.

And that ultimately led to the caucuses, in which precinct members from a district choose a successor to fill an unexpired term within 30 days.

The Capitol and Washington political blog keeps an ongoing list of members who arrived in the legislature via caucus rather than an election. A 2018 analysis showed that after the caucus process was implemented, there was a 33% increase in vacancies.

But he also found that many of the vacancies were related to legislators assuming other elected offices. For instance, a state House member moving across the building to the Senate. Or a state lawmaker moving to Congress.

Other reasons for leaving run the gamut: new jobs, age, health problems. Sometimes it is used to avoid a scandal becoming public.

Leaving so early after you just ran for election and asked voters to put their faith in you leaves a bad taste in my mouth. It is especially worse in the Senate when four-year terms are filled by appointees.

Deaths sometimes occur, obviously, and a caucus makes more sense in those cases because they are

The White House dog scandal

Last week, President Joe Biden's German shepherd Commander bit a Secret Service agent. That marked the 11th time - yes, the 11th time — that Commander had bitten one of the agents and other Secret Service officers who guard the president. Some of the attacks left wounds requiring medical attention, and at least one required hospital care for Commander's victim.

Obviously, the dog should have been removed from the White House a long time ago. What other workplace would allow a dog, even the boss's dog, to remain after biting at least 11 people? I say "at least" because there are 11 known incidents, but it's not clear that all the incidents are known. The situation is actually a scandal, and it reflects badly on Biden, who apparently does not care if his dog repeatedly attacks the people who protect him.

The public would not know about any of this had the conservative legal group Judicial Watch not filed a Freedom of Information Act lawsuit seeking Secret Service emails and other records. Among the documents handed over was an email from Nov. 3, 2022 that said Commander had bitten a Uniform Division officer two times, once in the upper right arm and also in the officer's thigh. After being bitten twice, the officer used a steel cart to shield himself from the attacking dog. Then, according to the emails, "White House medical treated the officer and made the decision to have [the officer] transported to a hospital.

In case anyone thinks the president and first lady Jill Biden don't know what is happening, consider this email from Oct. 26, 2022. "Recently Commander has been exhibiting extremely aggressive behavior," a Secret Service officer wrote. "Today, while posted, he came charging at me. The First Lady couldn't regain control of Commander and he continued to circle me. I believe it's only a matter of time before an agent/officer is attacked or bit. He would have bitten me today if I didn't step towards him a couple different times. It was bad enough that the agent on the detail asked if I got bit." Mrs. Biden apparently witnessed the whole incident.

When the first news of Commander's attacks came out in July, the White House issued a statement suggesting Commander has been under a lot of stress and that the Bidens were "working through ways" to improve the situation. "The White House complex is a unique and often stressful environment for family pets," the statement said, "and the First Family is working through ways to make this situation better for everyone. They have been partnering with the Secret Service and Executive Residence staff on additional leashing protocols and training, as well as establishing designated areas for Commander to run and exercise. Now we have news of another attack. And the White House has issued another insubstantial statement. "The First Family continues to work on ways to help Commander handle the often unpredictable nature of the White House grounds," a White House statement said. "The President and First Lady are incredibly grateful to the Secret Service and Executive Residence staff for all they do to keep them, their family, and the country safe."

The reaction is similar to a 2021 situation involving Biden's previous German shepherd, Major, who also bit a number of people in the White House. President Biden called Major a Yron "sweet dog," while a White House spokesman said the dog was "still adjusting to his new sur-roundings." Major was eventually sent to the Bidens' home in Delaware.

Now, incredibly, after Commander's attacks, the situation has become something of a joke. On Monday, Politico published a story headlined, "Commander's taste buds," which noted that Commander seems to bite only Secret Service personnel and not White House staff. "Among staff, there is an emerging belief that, in the eyes of Commander, they are off limits," Politico reported, "that the dog only has an appetite for the Secret Service.'

In fact, the article said, Commander is quite popular with White House staff. "Everyone loves him," one anonymous worker was quoted as saying. "He's always so friendly.'

One might think the situation is just great, with the exception of all those people who have been bitten and had to have medical care, in one case hospital care. In the non-White House world, a dog that has done what Commander has done might well be euthanized, and without a doubt would be removed from the area where he attacked people over and over. But not President Biden's dog.

Now, the president appears to be trying to explain away the situation. Biden didn't really want the dog, Politico reported, but felt he had to accept the pet. "When Biden's brother James gave Commander to the president for his birthday in 2021 after Major had been sent away — and as the first family was still grieving the loss of their longtime German shepherd Champ - it caught the White House off guard," Politico reported. "A person close to the Bidens said that the president and first lady initially weren't thrilled to be introducing a new puppy into their chaotic White House life, but they felt like they couldn't turn down a gift from a well-meaning family member."

Only in Washington does a politician do damage control by distancing himself from his dog. So what now? The first thing to say is that this is not funny. It's not a story about "Commander's taste buds." It's about a president who has allowed his White House to become a dangerous assignment for the agents who protect him. A president who puts his dog over the men and women who put their own lives on the line to save the president of the United States. As Joe Biden might say — not a joke. So when will the president do something about it? Byron York is chief political correspondent for The Washington Examiner unavoidable. For instance, Sen. Jack Sandlin died unexpectedly on Sept. 20.

Additional options

So how do other states tackle these vacancies? It is split down the middle, with 25 states holding special elections. The rest have some sort of appointment, usually by party insiders or the governor.

There would be an additional expense to these elections, but it could be worth it to make sure voters feel invested in their representative or senator. And maybe it would make sitting lawmakers think twice about fulfilling the commitment they made to their constituents.

Perhaps there could be a middle ground such as appointments when later in a term, but a special election if more than half of a term remains.

At this point, trust in the institution of government in general is precarious. And behind-closed-door caucus votes add to the disillusionment. I think state officials should do everything they can to bring the public into the political process - not keep them out.

Hibiscus beauty renewed

The Victorian era had a social civilization ambiance that unfortunately has been lost to the world. For example, presenting a single blossom of hibiscus to a female required no spoken words. It immediately conveyed the giver's message that the recipient was found to possess a striking, yet delicate beauty.

Perhaps this type of social finesse went asunder in the era of men converting their appreciation of feminine beauty down to a wolf whistle, followed by guffaw laughter. That likely began in 1937, by a cartoon whistling wolf in "Little Red Walking Hood." Yes, readers, "walking" truly was the correct title.

Now over two decades in the past, Angelkeep's first young hibiscus bush had been planted on the west side of the house. It received full sun from noon to sunset. It eventually grew well above the first story rain gutter. It received periodic trimming to contain growth and encourage full bloom. It had been planted in the Victorian spirit. Gwen would then soon move in as a bride. Her beloved color blue. Hibiscus — blue-violet.

This bush suddenly died without warning. Volunteer trees casting shadows may have been the big bad wolf that killed Angelkeep's blueviolet hibiscus bush.

Bluffton's farm market, a large Saturday morning affair filling a goodly size area in the parking lot between McDonalds, Scooter's, and Family Farm & Home, included a plant vendor. Many of her offerings were native plants. A single footlong stalk of an unknown variety of hibiscus bush secured in spring had #### been planted that very day in Angelkeep's sunniest location.

The planted stalk received an Osage orange stake to protect it from being mowed. Its pot, a repurposed plastic McDonalds drink cup, turned upsidedown on the stake, helped identify it as desirable. This avoided it being pulled as a weed in later weeks after the planting had been forgotten.

It began to grow among weeds.

Unpredictably, the new plant flourished beyond all expectations. It grew half again its height and sprouted several branches. Each leaved to soak up the sun it robustly needed. It stepped up its game and volleyed forth with two blooms. That joined Angelkeep's list of miraculous, unanticipated, achievements.

Since hibiscus was also known by the name of rose of Sharon, Angelkeep decided to name the new heartthrob bloomer Rose of Angelkeep.

The true variety remained anonymous. How nice it would have been to have Charles C. Deam back working his botany in Bluffton to do an official identification.

It didn't reflect the color of its Angelkeep predecessor. These petals grew predominantly bright pink with a deep ruby base ending in an off-white crème. The tall, center, standing, bloom's pistil carried on the crème coloring. The first observation

Alan Daugherty of the bombshell blooms occurred in a light rain's drizzle. As a result beads of rain covered every part of each of the five petals giving it the appearance that it was dusted with hundreds of diamonds.

After all, Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend (vintage 1949), and this bloom showed every sign of being uniquely a Victorian Lady-in-Waiting. Rose of Angelkeep had been, through nature's way, dressed to the nines. Did you know Queen Camilla quashed the British lady-in-waiting practice less than one year ago?

How tempting it had been to pluck one of the rose of Sharon blooms, or Rose of Angelkeep, and carry it inside for presentation to Angelkeep's Queen Gwen. Gardener instinct suggested any plucking and dismemberment of the first-year growth of this emerging bush might be detrimental in its natural needs to grow and eventually survive a coming winter season. Via post-Victorian technology alteration, the presenting of the hibiscus bloom came in the form of a digital photo.

Queen Victoria would have been agog at that, more so than being handed a living hibiscus bloom.

It will be a long winter and spring of anticipation to await the awakening of Rose of Angelkeep. Perhaps next year, should it survive, Gwen can be presented with a bloom. It could also be suggested to steep it for a cup of hibiscus tea. Gwen loves tea. She's not crazy for herbal, but hibiscus tea had been said to taste like cranberry. Rose of Angelkeep iced tea mayhap (inject wolf whistle as needed).

Mr. Daugherty is a Wells County resident who, along with his wife Gwen, enjoy their backyard and have named it "Angelkeep."

LIFESTYLES

Gloria follows her dream to own a flock of sheep

Owning sheep has been a dream of mine for years.

After purchasing over 1000 chestnut saplings, Daniel told us how efficient it is to have sheep grazing among the trees. Besides keeping the grass clipped, the trees are also naturally fertilized.

Not only that, growing children equals more energy to be spent somewhere. Having hands-on experience with sheep and nurturing young trees sounded appealing to both Daniel and me.

Now, a couple of years later, I find myself gazing across the chestnut field time and again, wondering if my dream has become a reality. A flock of sheep contentedly munching on lush green grass among seven-foot trees, reaching for the skies and growing with each rain shower.

arrived a month ago. The children were elated. Who wouldn't want to be the shepherd whom the sheep would learn to trust?

The sheep were bouncy and full of energy- who knew sheep could jump that high? I had no idea. Then, since they needed names, Snap, Crackle, and Pop seemed to be the perfect fit, so it was a deal.

I watched with keen interest, observing the very nature of sheep. If they were scared, they stayed in one tight group; where one went, they all went. My mind flashed to the reality that, as people, we, too, are much more protected when not on our own.

A few weeks later, we all went to a local sheep farm to buy four more sheep. Our neighbors, the Josh Raber family, went with us and also picked out sheep to add to their growing herd.

The old-time farmer and his wife helped us fetch and load the sheep

Austin had an eye on a chunkylooking brown sheep. I agreed it looked promising for it to have a lamb this fall. "By November, it should be lambing," the farmer said.

We were all eyes as we watched a llama strut among the sheep, acting as if he were the owner of them all. The little boys weren't sure of Our first group of three lambs this strange-looking animal as he curled up his lip, glaring at us.

> After an hour or two, we all piled into the 15-passenger van and neaded home.

> This group of sheep was unloaded at Josh's for the first couple of weeks since they came from a different farm.

> Last Monday night, I felt an urge to fetch Brownie at Josh's (as Austin named the new brown sheep). "But then, why be in a rush? Farmer Joe had said she wouldn't have her babies till November," I reasoned.

We'll wait till sometime in October to bring her home," I told Austin.

tin answered a phone call. It was Josh. "We have three extra animals on our farm," he said. "Two of them are your horses that came last night." (Sigh, they managed to knock down the gate, then paid a visit to the neighbors.) "And the third animal stays close to Brown-Austin erupted with, "A ie." lamb! A lamb!'

It was true. If I had only followed my instinct, she would have been home. It didn't take long to plan to see Brownie and Baby.

Everyone thought she was the cutest thing ever. "Could we name her Frisky?" Austin asked.

That evening, Brownie and Frisky came to their new home, getting the utmost care from six happy children.

Hopefully, soon, we'll bring Twinkie, Whoopie, and Cookie (the other sheep we got from the farm) home to join the herd. First, we need to get our fencing system fixed. Our little nanny goat, which runs with the sheep, discovered how to get through the fence; then, of course, she's got a following of all the sheep, thinking the grass may be greener on the other side of the fence.

Colts are waiting to make a decision on RB Jonathan Taylor

By MICHAEL MAROT AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jonathan Taylor returned to the practice field Wednesday for his first workout in 10 months.

Now he must prove to the Indianapolis Colts coaches he can carry the workload Sunday against Tennessee.

The All-Pro running back and 2021 NFL rushing champion was activated from the physically unable to perform list before a light, scaled-back practice, which gave Taylor his first real chance to take snaps with rookie quarterback Anthony Richardson.

"It's pretty simple just handing the ball off, knowing where to step," Richardson said when asked how long it would take the two to get in sync. "It's also learning the running back, learning how he wants the ball given to him, how he wants passes thrown to him. Maybe a couple days, maybe."

The Colts (2-2) are banking on a quick, seamless transition.

Taylor did not speak to reporters Wednesday before or after practicing for the first time since going on injured reserve Dec. 20. He then missed all of the team's offseason workouts following ankle surgery, spent all of training camp on the physically unable to perform list with lingering pain in the ankle and opened the regular season still on PUP.

So on the first day he could be activated, Indy wasted no time making its move. First-year coach Shane Steichen expects Taylor to catch up quickly.

"He's heard it all, so taking his notes, getting ready," Steichen said. "Anytime you sign a player — you sign players on Wednesday that start on Sunday."

The Colts know what they have when Taylor is healthy and motivated — one of the league's top playmakers.

After replacing the injured Marlon Mack in Week 1 of his rookie season, Taylor rushed for 1,169 yards and caught 36 passes for 299 yards and another score. He was more impressive in Year 2, winning the league's rushing title with 1,811 yards and 18 TDs, leading the league in scrimmage yards (2,171) and sharing the league lead with 20 total touchdowns.

Last season, for the first time in his pro or college career, Taylor dealt with injuries. He missed six games and finished with 861 yards, four TDs and a per carry average of 4.5 yards — all career lows.

But the former Wisconsin Badgers star wasn't just upset about injuries or stats. He also wanted job security, a contract extension.

In the spring, Taylor started lobbying for a new deal with one more year on his rookie contract. He complained publicly about the league's undervaluing of running backs and was embroiled in an ugly contract dispute, which included a social media spat between his agent and Colts owner Jim Irsay as well as an hour-long meeting on Irsay's bus — in front of a capacity training camp crowd. Shortly after, word leaked that Taylor requested a trade and in August, Indy gave him permission to find a trade partner. Nothing worked.

Too much T-Swift? Travis Kelce says NFL TV is 'overdoing it'

By The Associated Press

Maybe there's too much Taylor, not enough Travis.

Travis Kelce agreed Wednesday with the idea that NFL TV coverage has been "overdoing it" with the amount of times Taylor Swift has been on screen while attending his Kansas City Chiefs' games the last two weeks.

Swift was in a suite Sunday night at MetLife Stadium for the Chiefs' victory over the New York Jets in prime time. Jason Kelce, who plays for the Philadelphia Eagles, told his brother during their "New Heights " podcast that cameras showed live shots of the suite no fewer than 17 times during the game.

"Damn, that's crazy," Travis Kelce said. "That's like once a drive."

Travis did say that it's fun when the cameras show which famous people are at a game. Swift was in the suite with actors Ryan Reynolds, Blake Lively and Hugh Jackman.

"But at the same time, I think they're overdoing it a little bit for sure, especially my situation," Travis added.

Ian Trombetta, the NFL's senior vice president of social, influencer and content marketing, said in an interview with The Associated Press that the league wants to "make sure we remain in a celebratory sort of posture and position, and one that we don't want to over-commercialize, in a way."

Trombetta noted that "there's always chatter around different celebrities and so on that are attending different games, but this took a life of its own, and I think a big part of it has to do with just the high level of interest in Taylor and what's going on with her personal life, as well as Travis."

Jason Kelce said he believes the NFL just isn't used to having as many celebrities at games. He said it's more common at NBA games, where they show the A-listers a couple of times but then stick to the game.

That hasn't been the case the last two Sundays when the Chiefs were playing with their Grammy-winning fan in attendance.

"I'll tell you what though, you never know, you could get caught throwing a big ol' cheeseburger in and you look like an idiot, you know what I mean?" Travis Kelce said on the podcast. "There's certain things, you don't want to be on TV at all times." Bluffton finished the volleyball regular season with a sweep over North Side in front of a rowdy student section and crowd on Senior Night.

The three seniors, Cayah King, Haley Gibson, and Claire Craighead, went out with a bang in front of their home fans, winning the sets 25-13, 25-19, 25-12.

The 2023 volleyball class is especially special to head coach Stacy Morrison, who has been watching the three since they were young.

"I have a daughter that's in their class, so I've been around these girls since elementary school, and I know them very well," Morrison said. "That's what makes them special. They're funny. They've got a great sense of humor, and they enjoy playing the game and enjoy hanging out and having fun."

What's special about this Tiger team (10-19) is that they're catching fire at the right time. Over the past three games, Morrison has seen her group compete at its highest level all season.

Though two of those games have been losses, the Tigers forced five sets on Wabash and a good Norwell bunch on the road. team is on the attacking side, where Haley Gibson and Marly Drayer have been connecting with the hitters.

As the setter, Gibson put up 15 assists that helped hitters like Maryn Schreiber (who led the team with nine kills), King, Konley Ault, and Isabella Stout.

The team is building confidence, another area Morrison has seen them grow and would like to build upon it.

"I think Haley and our hitters are really starting to connect," Morrison said. "Everything's just starting to come together. If we can just not get caught up if there's one mistake to turn it into three and four."

To add to the offensive night, Craighead served up six aces for the Tigers.

On the defensive end, Drayer had her own storyline.

Coming into the match, she was sitting at 989 career digs. Because this was the last game, the team was hoping to get her the 11 she needed.

Players will get the honor of their milestone during the match with gifts and posters. But the Tigers were worried she might not hit the mark since you can stop the match during regular season games — not in the postseason.

After nearly three sets had gone by, had 20 points on the board, limiting the amount of opportunities. Her teammates even intentionally miss-fired serves to give her extra chances.

North Side, however, had also missed on some of their serves and points, and eventually, Bluffton got to 25 with one dig left to go.

"We were doing everything we could to get her that last dig," Morrison said. "You can only control so much when it comes to digs."

The unfortunate ending had gifts and posters left behind for now, but Drayer can still earn her final dig in the sectional next week.

That match will take place at the Tiger Den against Whitko at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 12.

Stat leaders for the night were Haley Gibson with 15 assists, Marly Drayer 10 digs, Claire Craighead 6 aces, Maryn Schreiber 9 kills and one stuff block.

The junior varsity team won in two sets.

Stat leaders were Sophie Eisenhut seven kills and one stuff block, Isla Gibson seven assists and two aces, Rori Drayer 2 aces, Rylynn Penick one stuff block.

Brett Favre will testify under oath in Mississippi welfare scandal civil case

By MICHAEL GOLDBERG Associated Press

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Retired NFL quarterback Brett Favre will answer questions under oath about the misspending of federal welfare money in Mississippi, where public money intended to help some of the nation's poorest people was used to fund pet projects he and other well-connected people supported.

A notice of deposition filed Monday in Hinds County Circuit Court by attorneys for Mississippi's Department of Human Services shows Favre will give sworn testimony on Oct. 26 at a hotel in Hattiesburg. The Pro Football Hall of Famer is among more than three dozen defendants in a lawsuit the current Human Services director filed to recover some of the welfare money.

Favre has denied wrongdoing, sued the state auditor who investigated the misspending for defamation and said he paid back misspent welfare funds.

Mississippi has ranked among the poorest states in the U.S. for decades, but only a fraction of its federal welfare money has been going toward direct aid to families. Instead, the Mississippi Department of Human Services allowed wellconnected people to fritter away $77 million in federal welfare funds from 2016 to 2019, according to the state auditor and state and federal prosecutors.

Instead of going to needy families, about $5 million helped fund a volleyball arena that Favre supported at his alma mater, the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, said Mississippi Auditor Shad White, whose office investigated the scandal. Favre's daughter played volleyball at the school. Another $1.7 million went to the development of a concussion treatment drug, a project Favre supported.

No criminal charges have been brought against Favre, although a former department director and other people have pleaded guilty to their part in the misspending. Favre has asked the Hinds County Circuit Court and the Mississippi Supreme Court to remove him as a defendant in the civil lawsuit, but both requests were denied.

The deposition will be conducted by oral examination before a court reporter and may be video-recorded. A confidentiality order approved by the court would keep all of the testimony private for at least 30 days after its completion date, court records show.

21 years with win to sweep Blue Jays behind Gray, Correa

By DAVE CAMPBELL AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Carlos Correa endured the worst hitting season of his career after signing the richest contract in Minnesota Twins history, playing through a painful bout of plantar fasciitis in his left foot.

The defense, intelligence and leadership were always there, though. Postseason prowess was part of the package, too.

Correa had an RBI single and a quicktwitch tag on a pivotal pickoff throw from Sonny Gray, and the Twins swept the Toronto Blue Jays with a 2-0 win in Game 2 of the AL Wild Card Series on Wednesday.

"Everything is October. The mentality is different. I'm just giving everything out there, everything I have," Correa said. "I'm going to keep doing that for the rest of the time that I'm here in Minnesota.'

The Twins advanced — for the first time in 21 years — to play the defending World Series champion Astros. Game 1 of the bestof-five AL Division Series is in Houston on Saturday.

That's familiar territory for Correa, who spent seven seasons with the Astros. He signed with Minnesota in 2022 and re-upped for $200 million this year after agreed-to deals with the Giants and Mets fell apart over concern about an old ankle injury.

'Superstars show up in the biggest moments," Gray said. "Just the way he sees the game, the way he can slow it down, is a special player."

Correa helped Houston reach three World Series, winning it all in 2017, and he's one round into another memorable October.

"They've got a great team, and so do we," Correa said. "Everywhere you look, we're ready.'

The two-time All-Star, who went 3 for 7 with a hit-by-pitch against the Blue Jays, ripped a bases-loaded single in a two-run fourth. The patient Twins delivered precisely when they needed to at the plate, and their bullpen tossed 7 1/3 scoreless innings in the series.

Jhoan Duran, after a delay to tend to a cut on his thumb following his warmup, struck out the side in the ninth to trigger a celebration around the mound.

The Blue Jays, who lost their seventh straight game in the playoffs since the AL Championship Series in 2016, left nine runners on base in each game. Matt Chapman had a line drive hook just foul before grounding into an inning-ending double play with the bases loaded in the sixth against Caleb Thielbar.

"One run in two games, one extra-base hit isn't going to cut it," Toronto manager John Schneider said.

Minnesota, after stopping a record 18-game postseason skid with the 3-1 win in Game 1, ended a nine-round losing streak that started with an ALCS defeat in 2002. The Atlanta Braves (2001-2019) and Chicago Cubs (1910-1998) share the all-time mark with 10 straight series lost.

The Blue Jays made Gray work for his first career win in the playoffs, but the veteran right-hander finished five effective innings. He had three inning-ending strikeouts, before the slick move to finish the fifth when he was in the most trouble.

Gray threw a wild pitch that put runners on second and third. But with a full count on Bo Bichette, Gray whipped around and threw to the shortstop Correa, who grabbed the ball and grazed Vladimir Guerrero Jr.'s chest with his glove a split-second before Guerrero's hand hit the base.

Correa noticed the Blue Jays were taking big leads and having trouble hearing with the crowd noise, so he told Gray he'd signal when to try a pickoff.

"I told him there were some free outs on the bases," Correa said. "It felt like the right situation to do it."

The sellout crowd of 38,518 was even more into the action than Game 1, standing in anticipation of every inning-ending out for the Twins and thriving off the bulldog energy that Gray brought to the mound. He finished third in the major leagues in ERA (2.79) during the regular season and logged 184 innings, his most since 2015.

Gray, who is eligible for free agency after the World Series, grew emotional in his pregame news conference on Tuesday when talking about the motivation that he gets from his two boys. His son, Declan, even issued an ultimatum to his dad before the series: "You better not lose.'

Blue Jays starter Jose Berríos threw three scoreless innings against his former team, but Schneider followed through on his promise that the entire pitching staff, excluding Game 1 starter Kevin Gausman,

after a leadoff walk by Game 1 star Royce

made 31 or more starts this season, was greeted by a single by Max Kepler. Pinch-hitter Donovan Solano walked, Correa put the Twins up with his single, and pinch-hitter Willi Castro's double-play groundout got

"He had electric stuff," Schneider said of Berríos. "Tough to take him out. But I think with the way they're constructed, you want to utilize your whole roster. It didn't work out."

Schneider pulled the right-hander Berríos

No. 10 Notre Dame hopes to improve its struggling offense

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) - Notre Dame and quarterback Sam Hartman need to find a quick fix.

The offense that looked so impressive through the first four games suddenly has gone stagnant. It scored just 35 points against the last two opponents, then-No. 6 Ohio State and then-No. 17 Duke.

While the defense has done its job by holding both teams to 17 or fewer points, the 10th-ranked Fighting Irish hope to turn things around Saturday when they play their third straight unbeaten opponent, No. 25 Louisville. But Notre Dame coach Marcus Freeman isn't panicking.

"Every college football team will improve throughout the season," he said. "The ones that improve the fastest are the ones that usually play for championships and are playing at the end of the year for things that are extremely important. So, that's our challenge: to improve faster than our opponents."

Notre Dame thought it had solved the problem when Hartman led the offense to 46.0 points and 508.8 yards through the first four weeks.

Then came the fall.

While part of the explanation clearly could be playing stronger opponents, the Irish (5-1) also are struggling with the surprises they're seeing on game days.

You also are learning that people adjust to us," offensive coordinator Gerad Parker said. "Maybe sometimes what our film study shows is not what we get."

Hartman failed to match the hype in the two prime-time games, completing just 58.2% of his passes for 397 yards, 7.2 yards per attempt and one touchdown. In the previous four, he connected on 71.1% of his throws for 11.8 yards per attempt and 13 TDs.

Ohio State and Duke both had defenses ranked among the top 10 in points and yards per pass attempt. Plus, Notre Dame has asked Hartman not to be as aggressive against top-tier opponents.

His numbers may reflect why. Since 2021, Hartman is 3-5 against AP Top 25 teams, completing 55.9% of his throws for 7.6 yards per attempt with 20 TDs and 11 interceptions.

Another factor could be injuries. Only three receivers played last weekend at Duke, though two of Hartman's favorite targets who sat out - Jaden Greathouse and Jayden Thomas — could return against the Cardinals (5-0). Both practiced Tuesday.

'We expect them both to be back," Freeman said. "They're both improving."

Notre Dame's inability to finish drives with touchdowns is another concern.

Hartman led 13 drives into opponents territory, with only six producing points. There were no turnovers and the Irish averaged 4.7 yards per carry, but they failed to convert two fourth-and-1 plays against Ohio State.

"When you think of the fourth-and-1 situations on offense, we've got to convert because we're going to continue to go for those (based on) the percentages of success," Freeman said. "That's a mindset that I have, and we have to be able to execute."

Kicker Spencer Shrader's recent struggles haven't helped, either. Though he set a program record with a 54-yard field earlier this season, he's only making 50% of his attempts and has missed from 47 and 37 yards. Freeman recently changed holders, giving the job to punter Bryce McFerson so Shrader feels more comfortable.

The offense also struggled with the atmosphere at Duke, committing six pre-snap penalties, something that must get better in a similar scenario this weekend at Louisville.

So, against coach Jeff Brohm's highscoring, creative offense, Notre Dame must be right on point.

"It doesn't take long to watch film to see why they're 5-0," Freeman said. "It's another night game, and it'll be a great atmosphere, a great opportunity. They've got an explosive offense."

Slipping away from my wife

Dear Annie: My wife wakes up every weekday at 5 a.m. and goes to work at 6 a.m. I don't know what time she gets out of work, but she goes to her house (she owns a separate house) and, according to her, takes a nap. She usually comes home around 8 p.m. That is 14 hours a day that she is not here!

The other day when she called, I heard another voice in the background. I should mention she has several suitors that live by her house. She spends most of a lucky lady out the weekends at her house, saying she is doing yardwork.

I should also mention I have four beers every night. This is nothing new; I have always had several beers or cocktails, and she knew this when we started dating.

She is 67 years old, and I am 73. We have been married for seven years. Now my drinking has suddenly become an issue with her, and she says we will not be having sex till I stop drinking! I get the feeling she has disdain for me. I get a quick kiss every morning before she leaves for work, but that's it. I don't know what to do. Any suggestions? - Basically Alone

Dear Basically Alone: There are a couple of issues to address here, and it seems likely that they all relate back to your drinking. Four beers every night classifies you as a heavy drinker, and the fact that you are unwilling - or unable - to stop this habit is certainly a red flag. I would seek out a local Alcoholics Anonymous chapter and start attending meetings.

Additionally, the trust and communication between you and your wife is lacking, to say the least. Acknowledging your dependency on alcohol is a necessary first step, but couples therapy is also essential. These issues are compounding your drinking is driving your wife away, and the stress of not knowing your wife's whereabouts is causing you to keep drinking. If things don't change, this vicious cycle will only get worse.

Dear Readers: Below are two lovely letters for "Grieving in Portland," the man who is grieving his late wife and wondering how best to move on - for his own sake and for his dog, Max. The first letter offers a practical suggestion, while the second has some words of encouragement that were too beautiful not to print. I hope you eniov.

Dear Annie: "Grieving in Portland" seems like a really wonderful gentleman who would make a great partner for there! He mentions his Cavachon, and seems very devoted to his dog.

I have Cavalier King Charles Spaniels and run a Facebook group with over 1,500 members, the vast majority of whom are female, and plenty of them are single (some even widows).

Dear

Annie

by Annie Lane

The dogs immediately give us all a common interest, and we regularly schedule in-person meetups for our dogs to play. I have met some of my best friends in the group! I think "Grieving" could meet some wonderful people if he looked into joining dog groups on social media, where he can find meetups and start making social connections. Dogs are an excellent social lubricant, and he will know immediately that he has at least that much in common with the people he is spending time with. - Dog Mom in Michigan

Dear Annie: Your advice, Annie, to 'Grieving in Portland," was sound.

The key is to push yourself to build a life that is good, with or without a partner. Get involved; volunteer at a food bank, build a habitat home, paint a playground, join a hiking club with Max, take classes on something you've always wanted to learn, join a cornhole team — whatever.

My amazing new husband and I lost our loves to cancer, both devastated after happy marriages. We met down the road in a meeting about fundraising for our local schools, a shared passion.

Use that overflowing love from your late wife to find your way. She will help you. Meet people to have more friends, because the world is wide. The rest will fall into place. - Twice Blessed that every man must bear for himself, for no one can do it for him; and if he neglects them, they will not be borne. However, as Christians, we are to bear one another's burdens, and friends and family can help us bear sorrows, misfortune, trials, loneliness, family cares, and spiritual difficulties. But we are not to worry

A: There are burdens

So while we can share our concerns and difficulties with others, asking for their prayers and fellowship of encouragement, we must also be interested in the burdens that others bear. The Bible says in various places that we are to "contribute to the needs of the saints ... practice hospitality

Meet this year's MacArthur 'genius grant' recipients

By THALIA BEATY Associated Press

A scientist who studies the airborne transmission of diseases, a master hula dancer and cultural preservationist, and the sitting U.S. poet laureate were among the 20 new recipients of the prestigious fellowships from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, known as "genius grants," announced on Wednesday.

MacArthur fellows receive a grant of $800,000 over five years to spend however they want. Fellows are nominated and endorsed by their peers and communities through an often yearslong process that the foundation oversees. They do not apply and are never officially interviewed for the fellowship before it's awarded.

Each year, the foundation calls the new class of fellows in advance of the public announcement and fellows described being shocked and stunned by the news after receiving a call from an unknown number, which they had sometimes initially ignored.

Ada Limón, who recently began her second term as the country's poet laureate, said she first missed a call the day after her grandmother, Allamay Barker, had died at the age of 98. It wasn't until the foundation emailed her that she called back. She said she wept when she heard the news.

"I felt like losing the matriarch of my family and then receiving this, it felt like it was a gift from her in some ways," she said, speaking from her home in Lexington, Kentucky.

Limón will be reading poetry to an audience at the University of Montevallo, a public university in Alabama, and speaking to a creative writing class in the hours after this year's class of MacArthur fellows are announced.

As poet laureate, she commissioned an anthology of poems "You Are Here: Poetry in the Natural World, to be published in April and also arranged for historic poems to be installed at seven national parks. NASA is planning to send a poem Limón wrote for an upcoming mission to Jupiter's moon Europa as part of a time capsule. The poem will be engraved on the spacecraft.

"One of the things that feels most emotional and remarkable to me is that this recognition is coming from within the poetry community," Limón said.

The foundation has run the fellowship since 1981 and selected more than 1,030 recipients. The awards are given to individuals "of outstanding talent to pursue their own creative, intellectual, and professional inclinations," according to the foundation's website, and the grants are not tied to a specific project or institution. Many past fellows like Octavia Butler, Paul Farmer and Twyla Tharp are luminaries in their fields and Marlies Carruth, who directs the MacArthur Fellows program, emphasized that they hope fellows will support and inspire each other. The foundation also hosts events for current and past recipients.

"The prize is financial, but it's also access and being part of a community of extraordinary thinkers and doers," said Carruth. Last year, the foundation raised the award amount from $625,000 to $800,000. The foundation previously increased the award amount a decade ago from $500,000 to $625,000.

The 2023 class of fellows includes Andrea Armstrong, professor at Loyola University New Orleans, College of Law, who created a database of everyone in Louisiana who has died in prison or jail since 2015; Patrick Makuakāne, a master teacher of hula who is dedicated to preserving Hawaiian cultural heritage; and National Book Award winner Imani Perry, who has authored multiple books about the resistance and activism of Black Americans in the face of injustice.

Linsey Marr, an environmental engineer, was in her office when an unknown number called her cellphone, which she did not answer. When the same number called her office line, she picked up with some skepticism, Marr said.

"To think that I've actually been selected as one is really mind-blowing," she said, of the MacArthur fellows

Before the pandemic, Marr, who is a distinguished professor of civil and environmental engineering at Virginia Tech, studied questions about how viruses moved through the air and how much transmission happens by people breathing in the virus versus from contaminated objects.

Her expertise became extremely relevant after the outbreak of COVID-19 when she argued that airborne transmission was likely a major way the virus was spreading. She said she hopes this recognition of her work will help her gain access to data to better understand the seasonality of the flu.

Ian Bassin is the cofounder and executive director of Protect Democracy, a nonpartisan organization that helped to shape legislation passed in December 2022 to overhaul the Electoral Count Act. The changes clarify parts of the 1887 law to make it harder for future presidents to seek to prevent the transfer of power.

When he received the call from MacArthur, Bassin was standing in his kitchen and said his mind immediately went to his late grandparents, with whom he wished he could share the news. He said he sees himself as just one of a multitude of organizations and people working to create a more inclusive and resilient democratic system.

"This fellowship feels both like a tremendous opportunity, but also a responsibility because the work of protecting and perfecting our democracy is far from complete," Bassin said. "And so this just underscores for me the obligation I think I now have to do my part in finishing that work."

The other recipients of the MacArthur fellowship in 2023 are: E. Tendayi Achiume, a legal scholar examining global migration; Rina Foygel Barber, a statistician who has developed tools to improve the accuracy of predictions made by machine learning models; Courtney Bryan, a composer and pianist whose work draws on contemporary voices and crosses genres; Jason D. Buenrostro, a cellular and molecular biologist who developed new methods and tools to better understand how and when genes are expressed; multidisciplinary artist María Magdalena Campos-Pons whose work often foregrounds histories of the Caribbean; composer and artist Raven Chacon who blends performance and visual art to interrogate European colonialism of the Americas; Diana Greene Foster, a demographer and reproductive health researcher who has documented the impact of access to contraception or abortion on women's lives; Lucy Hutyra, an

who studies the movement of carbon through urban environments; artist Carolyn Lazard whose multidisciplinary work centers disability and accessibility; Lester Mackey, a computer scientist and statistician whose has helped improve the predictions of machine learning techniques; fiction writer Manuel Muñoz whose stories explore the experiences of the Mexican American community in California's Central Valley; Dyani White Hawk, a multidisciplinary artist who uplifts Indigenous art practices and aesthetics and their connections to contemporary art; A. Park Williams, a hydroclimatologist studying the impact of climate change on wildfires, drought and forest growth; and Amber Wutich, an anthropologist who studies the impact of water scarcity on communities and how they adapt.

U.S. health care workers picket outside hospitals in multiple states, kicking off 3-day strike

sands of Kaiser Permanente workers took to tainment and hospitality. ines in multiple states on Wednesday. launching a massive strike that the company warned could cause delays at its hospitals and clinics that serve nearly 13 million Americans.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Tens of thou- industries, including transportation, enter-

At least 453 000 workers have partici-

The Coalition of Kaiser Permanente Unions, representing about 85,000 of the health system's employees nationally, approved a strike for three days in California, Colorado, Oregon and Washington.

Some 75,000 people were expected to participate in the pickets. That includes about 180 workers from facilities in Virginia and Washington, D.C., who planned to picket only one day since many had to travel long distances to converge in Springfield, Virginia, on Wednesday, according to Local 2 Secretary-Treasurer Sarah Levesque.

Most of the facilities are in California, where scores of workers picketed outside hospitals.

'Kaiser has not been bargaining with us in good faith and so it's pushing us to come out here and strike," said Jacquelyn Duley, a radiologic technologist among the hundreds of picketers at Kaiser Permanente Orange County - Irvine Medical Center. "We want to be inside just taking care of our patients."

The Oakland, California-based nonprofit company said its 39 hospitals, including emergency rooms, will remain open. Doctors are not participating, and Kaiser said it was bringing in thousands of temporary workers to fill the gaps. Still, appointments and nonurgent procedures could be pushed back.

Early Wednesday, workers at Kaiser Permanente Los Angeles Medical Center cheered as the strike deadline arrived. The strikers include licensed vocational nurses, home health aides and ultrasound sonographers, as well as technicians in the radiology, X-ray, surgical, pharmacy and emergency departments.

Brittany Everidge, a ward clerk transcriber in the medical center's maternal child health department, was among those on the picket line. She said that because of staffing shortages, pregnant people in active labor can be stuck waiting for hours to be checked in. Other times, too few transcribers can lead to delays in creating and updating charts for new babies.

"We don't ever want to be in a situation where the nurses have to do our job," she said.

Patients like Carlos Herrera, 65, walked by picketers in Los Angeles.

Herrera, who was there for a kidney test, said there were few people inside urgent care and his 10:40 a.m. appointment was on time. He said he supports the strikers because they need more people to combat staffing shortages to treat patients like him.

The strike comes in a year when there have been work stoppages within multiple pated in 312 strikes in the U.S. this year, according to Johnnie Kallas, a Ph.D. candidate and the project director of Cornell University's Labor Action Tracker. That figure includes Kaiser workers.

He said the strike will likely hurt Kaiser's reputation and its narrative of patient care more than its bottom line.

"I do think there's a deep connection between what health care workers had to go through on the front lines of a global pandemic," he said, adding the feeling now is "they really deserve a lot more in terms of pay, staffing, workplace health and safety."

The health care industry alone has been hit by several strikes this year as it confronts burnout from heavy workloads - problems that were exacerbated greatly by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Unions representing Kaiser workers in August asked for a $25 hourly minimum wage, as well as increases of 7 percent each year in the first two years and 6.25 percent each year in the two years afterward.

Union members say understaffing is boosting the hospital system's profits but hurting patients, and executives have been bargaining in bad faith during negotiations.

Tonya Harris, who was on the picket line in Irvine, about 40 miles south of Los Angeles in Orange County, said medical assistants like her are often asked to double up with doctors — each of whom has up to 20patients — instead of working one-to-one.

"You're running around and you're trying to basically keep up with the flow," she said, wearing her strike captain vest over her scrubs.

The single mother with two kids going into college said she also can't afford to live in Orange County on her current pay.

Kaiser said in a statement Wednesday that it had upped its proposal to boost minimum hourly wages by a couple of dollars and was now offering between $23 and $25 next year depending on the location.

The company said it also completed hiring 10,000 more people, adding to the 51,000 workers the hospital system has brought on board since 2022.

Kaiser Permanente's operating revenue climbed 7 percent in this year's second quarter to more than $25 billion. The health care giant said in August that strong investment income helped it turn a $2.1 billion profit for the quarter, swinging from a $1.3 billion loss a year earlier. However, the company said it was still contending with inflation and labor shortages.

Kaiser executive Michelle Gaskill-Hames said the company's practices, compensation and retention are better than its competitors, even as the entire sector faces the same challenges.
